CHAPTER XVI HINDU-GERMAN CONSPIRACIES The Society for Advancement in India-- Gaekwar Scholarships --Har Dyal and Gadhr--India in 1914-- Papen s report-- German and Hindu agents sent to the Orient--Gupta in Japan--The raid on von Igel s office-- Chakravarty replaces Gupta--The Annie Larsen and Maverick filibuster--Von Igel s memoranda--Har Dyal in Berlin--A request for anarchist agents--Ram Chandra --Plots against the East and West Indies--Correspondence between Bernstorff and Berlin, 1916--Designs on China, Japan and Africa--Chakravarty arrested--The conspirators indicted. As far back as 1907 a plot was hatched in the United States to promote sedition and unrest in British India. The chief agitators had the effrontery in the following year to make their headquarters in rooms in the New York Bar Association, and to issue from that address numerous circulars asking for money. The late John L. Cadwallader, of the distinguished law firm of Cadwallader, Wickersham and/ Taft, was then president of the Bar Association, and when he learned of the Hindu activities under the roof of the association he swiftly evicted the ringleaders. Their organization, chartered in November, 1907, was called The Society for the Advancement of India. One of its officers was a New York man to whom the British have since refused permission to visit India. Its members included several college professors. The presence of several educators in the list may be accounted for by the fact that the society existed apparently for the purpose of supplying American college training to selected Hindu youths....
